Carolina Planning

Bridging Planning Theory and Practice for Over Thirty Years

Carolina Planning is the oldest student-run planning publication in the country. Articles selected for the journal are written by professionals and academics, covering a wide range of topics relevant to today’s planning challenges.

Past issues have highlighted information on emergency preparedness in disadvantaged communities, smart growth in rural America, building healthy communities, resilient cities, and urban greening.

Generous support for this publication is provided by the NCAPA, the John A. Parker Trust Fund, and the UNC-CH Department of City and Regional Planning Alumni Association.

Reading and contributing to Carolina Planning connects you to practitioners and academics throughout the state, region and beyond. Please complete this subscription form and mail with payment to the address below or to the co-editors of Carolina Planning.
